

Vision 2025 - KCSC Strategic Plan

MISSION

The mission of the Kern County Superior Court is to provide justice fairly and efficiently for all.

VISION

It is our vision to ensure that all members of the public have access to a fair and independent court that provides justice under the law, and serves each person professionally, with integrity and respect.

PURPOSE OF STRATEGIC PLAN

Rule 10.603(c)(9) of the California Rules of Court requires the presiding judge of the Superior Court to: (a) prepare and adopt, with assistance from appropriate court committees and input from the community, a long-range strategic plan that is consistent with the plan and policies of the Judicial Council, and (b) ensure the court regularly and actively examines access issues, including physical, language, or economic barriers that impede the fair administration of justice.

By this strategic plan, the Kern County Superior Court (“KCSC”) affirms its mission and describes the initiatives it will undertake to achieve the court’s vision over the next five years. The strategic plan initiatives represent the court’s vision as applied to seven categories that are the KCSC’s key priorities:

1. Vision for Access to Courts
2. Vision for Court Facilities & Security
3. Vision for Courtroom Operations
4. Vision for Court Administration, Finance & Public Affairs
5. Vision for Court Technology
6. Vision for Jury Services
7. Vision for Court Excellence

The strategic plan is a resource for efficient court management, not a “wish list” or “checklist” of things to do. It should facilitate the successful implementation of initiatives the court now sees as a priority, but never at the expense of good sense. If unforeseen circumstances arise, new strategies may be required, and the plan may have to change. The plan may also provide reasons to postpone or decide against new undertakings that do not immediately serve the KCSC vision.

The plan is informed with input from judicial officers, court management and staff, stakeholders and court users, civic leaders and members of our community. The plan has been examined for consistency with the plan and policies of the Judicial Council. Careful consideration has been given to access issues and barriers that may impede the fair administration of justice.

STRATEGIC PLAN SETTING

The KCSC currently serves a diverse, growing local population of approximately 897,000.<sup>1</sup> The KCSC is comprised of 38 judicial officers and seven non-judicial officers conducting court sessions throughout Kern County’s metro and multi-divisional court facilities.<sup>2</sup> There are currently three vacancies for judicial office, which includes two new positions allocated to Kern County and funded based on a recent statewide workload assessment.<sup>3</sup>

The KCSC facilities are situated in Bakersfield [Metro Division, Metro Justice Division, Juvenile Justice Center (“JJC”), and Metro Traffic Division], east Kern County [Kern River, Mojave and Ridgecrest], north Kern County [Delano and Shafter], and south Kern County [Lamont and Taft]. Available courtroom space in the existing KCSC facilities for additional judicial officers is limited.<sup>4</sup>

Historically, the KCSC has been one of the most underfunded courts in the state. A change in the state’s funding methodology for courts—placing greater emphasis on workload—is now addressing that inequity.<sup>5</sup>

Ongoing state funding for KCSC operations is not expected to change significantly over the next five years. The KCSC funding allocation for fiscal year (“FY”) 2020-21 is expected to represent an increase over the two preceding fiscal years.<sup>6</sup> However, the state budget for FY 2020–21 was “developed against the backdrop of an extraordinarily strong economy,” according to the Governor’s budget summary. State revenue growth over each of the next four years is projected to be slower than 2019-20, constraining new spending commitments.<sup>7</sup>

At the same time, the KCSC workload is expected to increase.<sup>8</sup> While overall case filings may remain relatively static, there is an upward trend in the number of self-represented litigants, particularly in family law and civil matters. Cases involving crimes committed by prison inmates in Kern County have essentially doubled over the last four years.<sup>9</sup> Statewide changes in criminal justice law and policy may reduce the prison population statewide,<sup>10</sup> but are also likely to effect a net increase in the KCSC criminal case workload.

The KCSC responded well to budget challenges that led to court closures in other counties less than a decade ago. Excellent management, a hard-working and well-trained staff, creativity, and the flexibility to adapt, made it possible for the KCSC to do more, with less. These practices must continue and evolve in order to meet future demands and the many variables that can affect the KCSC mission.<sup>11</sup> The success of existing court policies and procedures, as well as the initiatives discussed in this strategic plan, should be measured<sup>12</sup> and evaluated at appropriate intervals to ensure the KCSC remains accountable to its mission and vision.

ENDNOTES

<sup>1</sup> Census data shows Kern County’s population increased from 544,981 in 1990, to 651,632 (+20%) in 2000, to 839,631 (+29%) in 2010. The City of Bakersfield’s population increased from 183,959 in 1990, to 244,217 (+33%) in 2000, to 347,483 (+42%) in 2010. Recent estimates suggest the rate of increase has slowed, but there remains a steady upward trend. See Table 1.

<sup>2</sup> The primary assignments for Kern County's judges and commissioners for calendar year ("CY") 2020 are:

- Presiding Judge: 1 judge
- Civil & small claims: 3 judges, 1 commissioner
- Felony: 12 judges
- Misdemeanor: 5 judges
- Family Law: 4 judges, 1 commissioner
- Probate: 1 commissioner
- Juvenile: 3 judges
- Metro Traffic: 1 commissioner
- East Kern (Kern River, Mojave, Ridgecrest): 3 judges, 1 commissioner
- North Kern (Delano, Shafter): 3 judges, 1 commissioner
- South Kern (Lamont, Taft): 1 judge, 1 commissioner
- Current vacancies: 3 judges (2 new judges; 1 recently retired)

<sup>3</sup> Kern County was identified as one of several counties statewide in need of additional judicial officers. When a vacancy occurs, the amount of time the office remains vacant typically depends on when the Governor fills the vacancy through the appointment process. The specific timing of such appointments is uncertain. In addition, there will likely be several judicial retirements over the next five years creating additional vacancies.

<sup>4</sup> In Bakersfield, there is one courtroom currently available in Metro Division, one new courtroom under construction that should be available for use in June 2020, and one small courtroom without a jury box that is used on a limited basis at JJC, where parking is limited. The Kern River and Taft facilities are used on a limited basis for traffic court proceedings, only. One judicial officer in north Kern divides time between courtrooms in both Delano and Shafter.

<sup>5</sup> The current trial court funding system is based essentially on three historical events: (1) The Trial Court Funding Act of 1997, which consolidated the costs of operating trial courts at the state level; (2) a constitutional amendment which unified the superior and municipal courts in 1998; and (3) the Trial Court Facilities Act of 2002, which transferred the responsibility for court facilities from counties to the state. KCSC funding is derived from several sources, approximately ninety percent of which comes from three sources:

- Court Operations Revenue – Approx. 71% of KCSC annual budget (see Table 2); comprised primarily of base funding as calculated using the Workload Allocation & Funding Methodology ("WAFM") – allocation based on weighted average workloads in each of the state's 58 trial courts – and other state fines and fees.
- Trial Court Reimbursements – Approx. 14.5% of KCSC annual budget; comprised primarily of reimbursements for the services of interpreters, juvenile dependency court-appointed counsel, grant-funded operations, prison hearings, and jury services.
- Other State Revenue – Approx. 5.4% of KCSC annual budget; state funding to cover cost changes in benefits.

<sup>7</sup> The proposed FY 2020–21 budget for the state’s trial courts includes $236.7 million in new funding from the General Fund and $34.3 million from other funds to support various trial court programs and operations, including expanded use statewide of an on-line ability-to-pay tool, and “backfill” for the anticipated loss of revenues from fines and penalties.

<sup>9</sup> Kern County is home to more prisons, community correction facilities and state inmates than any other county in California. The total inmate population in Kern County is roughly equal to that of Kern’s third largest city. Kern County has five California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (“CDCR”) prisons, and six Community Correctional Facilities:

CDCR prisons

- California City
- California Correctional Institution – Tehachapi
- Kern Valley State Prison
- North Kern State Prison
- Wasco State Prison

Community Correctional Facilities

- Central Valley Modified Community Correctional Facility
- Delano Modified Community Correctional Facility
- Female Community Reentry Facility
- Golden State Modified Community Correctional
- Shafter Modified Community Correctional Facility
- Taft Modified Community Correctional Facility

The KCSC Prison Court has been conducting video appearances with inmates housed in other prisons, outside the county, since 2017. According to CDCR statistics, the KCSC Prison Court saved taxpayers over $1 million by using the innovative video appearance system.

<sup>10</sup> The Governor’s proposed FY 2020-21 budget emphasizes his administration’s commitment to continuing reduction of the prison population, ending private prison contracts for male inmates, closing a state-operated prison within five years, and investing in restorative justice, community-based violence prevention, substance use disorder treatment, pretrial diversion, and implementing evidence-based reform of the probation system. Reform of the probation system will include reducing probation terms to a two-year maximum and increasing supervision for specified misdemeanors. Bail reform is pending. Although it is uncertain what the specific changes will entail, community-based solutions, increased supervision and bail reform are likely to mean greater court involvement.

<sup>11</sup> A variety of factors affect the court’s workload, such as mental health issues, drug addiction, and homelessness. Staffing and policies within the offices of the District Attorney, Public Defender, and the Indigent Defense Program can affect how cases are managed, and thus determine what judicial resources are required to conclude a case. Natural disasters and other catastrophic events can bring courts to a standstill.

<sup>12</sup> There are many performance measures, some of which are:

- Case Filings: The number of new cases, by case type, filed in during a specified time frame. See Table 3.
- Clearance Rate: The number of outgoing cases as a percentage of the number of incoming cases. Compare Table 3 and Table 4.
- Time to Disposition: The percentage of cases disposed of or otherwise resolved within an established time frame.
- Age of Active Pending Caseload: The age of active pending cases before the court, measured as the number of days from filing until the time of measurement.
- Trial Date Certainty: The number of times cases disposed by trial are scheduled for trial.

- Effective Use of Jurors: Can be measured various ways, such as “juror yield” (number of citizens selected for duty who are qualified and report to serve, expressed as percentage of total prospective jurors available), or “juror utilization” (rate at which prospective jurors are used).
  - Cost Per Case: Average cost of processing a single case, by case type.

Performance measures have limitations. For example, the number of “case filings” can provide useful information, but does not necessarily measure the workload that a particular case, or case type, may generate. A self-represented litigant who does not understand the process may create a higher-than-expected workload for a given case. Making resources and information available to that same litigant may reduce the number of hearings required to resolve that case.
